Chief Medical Executive & Chief Deputy Director for Health
Michigan Department of Health and Human Services

Joneigh S. Khaldun, MD, MPH, FACEP is the Chief Medical Executive and Chief Deputy Director for Health in the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS). In those roles, she provides overall medical guidance for the State of Michigan, and oversees public health, Medicaid, behavioral health, public hospitals, and aging services for MDHHS. Prior to her role at MDHHS, she was the Director and Health Officer for the Detroit Health Department, where she oversaw a robust community driven community health assessment, established a comprehensive reproductive health network, spear-headed new community-based human service efforts, and led Detroit's response to the Hepatitis A outbreak.

Previously, Dr. Khaldun was the Baltimore City Health Department's Chief Medical Officer, where she oversaw 7 clinics, a laboratory, and led efforts to address the opioid epidemic. She has held several local and national leadership positions, including Director of the Center for Injury Prevention and Control at George Washington University, Founder and Director of the Fellowship in Health Policy in the University of Maryland Department of Emergency Medicine, and Fellow in the Obama administration's Office of Health Reform. She's served on several national and local boards and committees, including the Commission on Health in Montgomery County, Maryland; Big Brothers Big Sisters of Metropolitan Detroit; the Detroit Urban Research Collaborative; the governor-appointed Michigan Public Health Advisory Council; and the CDC Health Disparities Advisory Committee. She was recently appointed to the National Advisory Board for the Institute for Healthcare Policy and Innovation at the University of Michigan.

In 2018, Dr. Khaldun was selected for the 40 Under 40 Leaders in Minority Health Award by the National Minority Quality Forum. She also received the deBeaumont Foundation 40 Under 40 Leaders in Public Health award in 2019. Dr. Khaldun obtained her undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan, medical degree from the Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, MPH in Health Policy from George Washington University, and completed residency in emergency medicine at Kings County Hospital Center in Brooklyn, NY, where she served as chief resident in her final year. She is a board-certified emergency medicine physician and practices part-time at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.
